EDGARFILINGS ADDS AT&T, INC. TO ITS ROSTER OF CLIENTS

HOUSTON, TX (August 15, 2007) . . . EDGARfilings (www.edgarfilings.com), a leading provider of SEC compliance solutions from Sarbanes-Oxley to EDGAR, has announced an agreement to provide its EDGARizer conversion software to AT&T, Inc.

The most widely-used EDGAR conversion software package on the market, EDGARizer is the only beginning-to-end solution that simplifies every step required to convert, edit and transmit a properly formatted document to the SEC. Moreover, the tool automatically converts Microsoft Word and Excel documents into the SEC's HTML format. The conversion is a simple cut-and-paste process completed without any HTML coding.

"Our decision was based on the need to simplify our filing processes, to improve the look of our filings and ensure error-free documents," says Trista Hendrix, Assistant to the Vice President of Financial Planning at AT&T. "Plus, the EDGARizer software allows us to be more productive since we have eliminated all of the challenges associated with coding HTML."

AT&T joins a long list of companies such as Lowe's, Carmax and Dominion Resources who rely on EDGARfilings for its suite of SEC compliance software solutions.

"Filers are looking to create corporate-branded documents quickly and painlessly – and on their schedule," says EDGARfilings' Chief Executive Officer Andrew Neblett. "We continue to see great demand for our EDGAR conversion software products."

With the passage of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, Neblett adds EDGARfilings continues to see a trend of organizations bringing the filing process in-house in order to gain greater control of their document submissions to the SEC.

But when it comes to the reasons why more companies are bringing their SEC filings in-house, Neblett explains greater control is just the tip of the iceberg.

"Many companies come into the process believing it will take more time to file their documents in-house, but they soon realize it is much faster and more cost-efficient," he says. "They experience first hand how creating their documents on their schedule is much easier than rushing back and forth to the printer."
