

EDGARFILINGS ANNOUNCES XBRL FALL TRAINING SCHEDULE

HOUSTON, TX (September 24, 2007) . . . EDGARfilings (www.edgarfilings.com), a leading provider of SEC compliance solutions from Sarbanes-Oxley to EDGAR, has announced the schedule for its Fall XBRL Training Workshops. These half-day workshops are designed to introduce companies to the practice of creating eXtensible Business Reporting Language (XBRL) documents for submission to the SEC.

The SEC is rapidly moving forward with XBRL, a technology which tags information in a way computers can sort and process data more quickly and with greater consistency. This process allows companies to submit XBRL versions of their financial information as part of their existing filing process. XBRL documents can be filed as supplement part of the Form 8-K, 6-K, or filed as part of a regular Form 10-Q/10-K filing along with the official HTML documents.

“As the SEC continues to emphasize XBRL, we’re seeing more organizations embrace the need for training and education,” says Nicholas C. Neblett, President of EDGARfilings. “Our XBRL training classes have been so popular that we decided to extend our workshop schedule.”

Each workshop will cover the SEC’s voluntary XBRL program, the fundamentals of XBRL, its terminology and concepts. Attendees at each presentation also will learn the basics of how to tag and map financial documents in XBRL as well as create and edit XBRL instance documents for filing with the SEC.

The XBRL Fall Training Workshops, each offering four hours of CPE credits, will be held as follows:

Toronto, Ontario - Wednesday, October 10, 2007
